WORKBOOK

1. Statement of Purpose	p. 1
2. Field Guide to Statistics Canada Publication Markings	p. 2
3. The Ten Considerations	p. 4
4. Retention Schedule by Type	p. 6
5. List of Reference Publications	p. 7
6. Comments: Retention Workbook and Guide	p. 20

Purpose

This retention guide was prepared by Advisory Services-Ontario and is based on the rationale used to maintain our Reference Centre collection, excluding Census publications.

The manual does not attempt to fully duplicate notes included in the Statistics Canada Catalogue, and so should be used in conjunction with the Historical Catalogue of Statistics Canada Publications 1918-80 (11-512) as well as the annual catalogues from 1982 to date.

The observations in the Comments section should allow you to weed non-Census Statistics Canada publications and retain a fairly complete and relatively fool-proof collection. The following criteria were used in preparing the comments:

- include publications released prior to August 31, 1985
- provide continuity of data, where available in print
- respect revision factors affecting data (limitations/comparability)
- source related materials - see also references
- note selected content changes/changes to format
- provide rationale for effective retention policy
- indicate historical links

Descriptions of "see also" publications were limited (in the main) to those published after 1980; for descriptions of those published before 1980, see 11-512, Historical Catalogue of Statistics Canada Publications.

This guide is based primarily upon the experiences of the Southern and Western Ontario Regional Office Reference Centre. We would welcome any suggestions you have for improvement. Please contact:

FIELD GUIDE TO STATISTICS CANADA PUBLICATION MARKINGS

"The Statistics Canada publication is a member of the species 'Government Documents' and not easily identified by its shape, colour or varied markings."

(excerpt from The Casual Observer, Reference Hill, Statscan City.
March 31, 1985.)

The catalogue numbering system for Statistics Canada publications has gone through a number of changes throughout its history.

Various types of publications have been listed in the Statistics Canada Catalogue: the "regular" publications (e.g. 53-216) and the "departmental" publications (e.g. 53-X-216). The "departmental" publications are listed immediately after the "regular" publications of the same subject and periodicity in the 1983, 1984 and 1985 Catalogue. Prior to 1983, these publications had a different type of Catalogue number or no number at all.

Future departmental publications are not planned. All publications will eventually be catalogued publications. The "departmental" publications were once called "non-catalogued" publications and carried a reference number like A-237. To incorporate them into the Catalogue, a numbering system was designed that resembled the catalogue system. These documents did not carry a regular catalogue number because their method of distribution was different and because they were mostly working papers, methodology journals and technical manuals. However, with this new "X" system they could be shelved in the same subject area as the regular publication.

Currently, all existing departmental publications which are in print are being reassigned 5-digit catalogue numbers.

The 1981 Census departmental publications were extensively promoted using a different numbering system (e.g. E-479). For the convenience of users, these publications were listed with the reference number as part of the entry although they were all recatalogued using the "x" system.

While the Statistics Canada Catalogue lists what might be called "mainstream" publications, the bureau has for many years consistently generated a small but significant quantity of supplementary documentation, in the form of technical papers and memoranda, discussion or working papers, etc. The availability of this documentation is less well-known but, in principle, it is equally available to the public and has in fact been distributed by the responsible author divisions to users who have expressed an interest in it. The reason such documentation is not publicized and made available through the formal channels referred to above is that it is often of a tentative, transitory or speculative nature. Its purpose is to report on progress, to invite further discussion, or to make available useful research findings which the bureau does not necessarily wish to endorse officially. Again, this kind of information may describe methodological or operational procedures at a level of detail going considerably beyond what is required for an ordinary understanding of the bureau's statistical outputs, and will thus be principally of interest to technically specialized clientele.

Some of these departmental papers are featured in the Statistics Canada Catalogue. However, the bulk of them are contained in 11-207 Listing of Supplementary Documents which will be updated annually.

Please note that all three types of publications may provide data on a given subject, and so if you are using historical data, the catalogues for each should be consulted.

The cataloguing system appears fairly stable at this time; consult the current Catalogue for any changes in policy.

FIELD GUIDE, CONTINUED

Cat. # Type

Description

NOTE: Effective April 1, 1985 Statistics Canada policy states that all future publications issued will be assigned a 5 digit catalogue number and be priced and therefore will appear in future issues of the Catalogue of Publications.

- | | |
|--|--|
| 1. 5 digits, e.g. 53-219 | <ul style="list-style-type: none">- regular catalogued publications- all listed in current catalogue or 11-512, Historical Catalogue of Statistics Canada Publications, 1918-80 |
| 2. 5 digits, with a letter following second digit, e.g. 93-X-918 | <ul style="list-style-type: none">- departmental publication (also called "X-pubs")- some listed in current catalogue- all listed in unpublished Departmental Publications Availability Listing (discontinued April/85) |
| 3. 3 digits, preceded by a letter
e.g. A-071 - Departmental Planning System, 1983 | <ul style="list-style-type: none">- unpublished supplementary documentation- listed in 11-207, Listing of Supplementary Documents |

4. E-publications (E-564) unique
 - all those 1981 Census publications originally catalogued to this system have been recatalogued to conform with the departmental publication system; e.g. 93-X-918
5. None of the above
 - some "publications" are produced with only a title identification, i.e. research or technical papers. Although these are not regular occurrences there still exists the potential for releases of this nature
 - consult 11-207, Listing of Supplementary Documents to verify whether they have been included, or contact your local Regional Office to locate a source for the document required.
 - brochures, pamphlets and information sheets frequently fall into this category

THE TEN CONSIDERATIONS

1. Occasional Transgressions

In principle all occasionals, that is publications with a "5" as the third digit of the catalogue number, i.e. 71-530, should be retained for at least 10 years, unless they are not required to meet the needs of your patrons or users. Any exceptions to this rule will be indicated in the Comments section of this manual.

2. Revisions - Beware!

Always use the latest issue available of a publication to ensure that you are obtaining latest revisions. Some data series are revised regularly (e.g. 13-001) and so the latest issue containing the reference period you are interested in should be consulted. This is true also of preliminary bulletins which can generally be discarded when the final or revised data is published, ie. 13-002P.

3. Finders - Keepers

Retain all reference or resource publications. A detailed list of these source documents will be included in the Retention Workbook. (pages 6 - 18)

4. Search for Hidden Treasures

When discarding publications, review to ensure that significant special issues (i.e. source documents or compendiums) are retained. For example, the March 1983 Supplementary issue of 72-002. See notes for each series in Section 6. Comments: Retention Workbook and Guide.

5. Cut and Paste

Update publications by inserting photocopies or making notations in the reference publication of the release in the Daily; this is a useful method of identifying that data is available and provides the current contact and source.

6. We've Got Your Number

To obtain updates on any data, contact the nearest Regional Office or use the phone number and address listed in the front of the publication to contact the Subject Matter Division.

7. Now You See It, Now You Don't

In order to trace the former whereabouts of data look at the first issue in the series; to find where data went look at the last issue in a discontinued publication series and refer to the Comments: Section 6 of this manual.

8. True Confessions and Revelations

Always refer to the notes and definitions provided in the publications. Differences in methodology or content will affect year to year comparisons of data.

9. The Good Books - The Way to Salvation

For historical continuity of reference keep:

11-512 Historical Catalogue of Statistics Canada Publications
1918-80

11-204 1985 Catalogue, and all subsequent issues until
Historical Catalogue of Statistics Canada
Publications, 1918-80, 11-512 has been updated
1982, 1983, 1984 Catalogues (these issues did not have catalogued numbers)

(1983 issue useful for tracking continuity of Census of Manufacturers publications as this period saw many publications discontinued or merged.

10. To Trash Or Not To Trash

Retention of semi-annual publications (i.e quarterly, monthly) can be based on the retention guidelines mentioned above. However, if you would like a longer (or shorter) time-series we recommend you keep the issue that has year end or annual data. This issue will vary among series, for example the March issue of 63-005 Retail Trade contains final revised monthly and annual figures for the preceeding calendar year. Other series provide annual data in the December or January issue; review the notes for each series carefully before discarding any issues.

SUGGESTED RETENTION SCHEDULE *

Monthlies	C + 3	- except where compilation of historical data exists
	C + 10	- all issues which give annual totals or summary data
Quarterlies	C + 3	- except where compilation of historical data exists
	C + 10	- all issues which give annual totals or summary data
Annuals	C + 10	- except where a compendium supplants in total
Occasionals	Indef.	- based on need and space or until superseded

All may be replaced with fiche based on space needs and budget of library.

* For all depository libraries we suggest that monthlies and quarterlies should be retained C + 10 and occasionals indefinitely.

 C + 3 = current year + 3 previous years of publications.

Historical issues and 1970 & 80 editions should be retained as they are very useful working manuals. Useful in tracing historical data as definitions change. All publications using this classification structure e.g. 72-002 From April 1983 to Current uses 1970; prior to April 1983 used 1960 SIC should be checked as to which edition is being used. COMMENTS

English and French. Effective May 1, 1985, a new feature of the DAILY is a monthly Index to Data Releases (alphabetically listed by subject with reference period and date of release in the DAILY). The Index for the preceding month is generally published as part of the first DAILY of each new month, beginning with the May 1st DAILY, which carried the Index for the month of April, as well as the Index to Data Releases for January through March 1985.

If possible, a year's worth of the DAILY should be retained. It should be used to update your collection, i.e. photocopy releases and attach to inside front cover of relevant publication; or consult the index to check for releases.

Effective April 1985, the DAILY has changed its mandate from that of a vehicle of publication to a vehicle announcing the release of data. In general, the texts are condensed and there are fewer tables, but there is still a lot of information provided. There are a number of data series which are published only in the Statistics Canada Daily. (see list below).

Provides data for only the current quarter, we retain the last 5 years of quarterly issues and the Oct-Dec. issue for earlier years. Commencing April 1974 the employment and payroll data were presented in a different framework and comparisons with previous years data should be made only at the aggregate level. Also, prior to the April-June 1976 issue the data included members of the Armed Forces. Data on Post Office Christmas helpers were excluded prior to Oct-Dec 1976 issue.
